This Miro board shows the brainstorming process where multiple feature ideas were generated and then refined into a focused set of key features for the stress relief app.